Background:

The Employee Referral & Internal Job Transfer Policy is a set of guidelines within an organization that governs the processes and procedures for employees recommending potential candidates and seeking internal job transfers. This policy encourages leaders & current employees to refer qualified individuals for job openings and provides a framework for assessing and rewarding successful referrals. Simultaneously, it outlines the steps and criteria for employees interested in transferring to different roles or departments within the company. The policy aims to leverage the internal talent pool, enhance employee engagement, and foster a culture of professional growth and development while maintaining fairness and transparency in the hiring and transfer processes.

Objective:

The objective of the Employee Referral & Internal Job Transfer Policy is to create a structured framework for employee referrals and internal job transfers within the organization. This policy aims to leverage the knowledge and connections of existing employees to attract top talent, streamline recruitment, and enhance workforce mobility by providing guidelines for employees seeking to explore new opportunities within the company. Ultimately, it fosters a culture of talent development, engagement, and retention while aligning with the organization's strategic staffing goals.

Employee Referral Process

1) The referral program begins when the recruitment team at Aithent posts a job opening. They can do this on our website, a job board, a notice board, in a meeting with the OPM team, or by emailing employees.
2) We share the job description for the position along with the job posting. This helps our employees understand what kind of candidate we're looking for.
3) If an employee knows someone suitable for the job, they can refer that person to our OPM team.
4) They send the candidate's resume to the recruitment/OPM team through the provided email address.
5) Our recruiters review the candidate's resume to see if it matches the job description in terms of skills and qualities.
6) When an employee refers a candidate, they need to mention their employee code, name, job title, department, date of joining, and how long they've been with the company.
7) If you want to refer a former employee, they should have left Aithent at least one year ago.
8) The OPM team will let the referring employee know if their referral is accepted or not to avoid duplicate submissions, which can lead to rejection.
9) The referred candidate will go through the interview process. If they are shortlisted and selected, they will proceed to the final interview round.

5) The remaining 50% of the incentive will be provided to the referring employee after the referred candidate has maintained continuous service with Aithent for a period of six months.
